Joan X. Vázquez is a graphic designer and illustrator. He is the founder of Lapis, a studio that fosters projects involving illustration, design, publishing, and artistic processes. Together with illustrator Ina Hristova, he coordinates a professional development program for illustrators.

A small stone will try to find out what happiness really is.

Tired of rolling alone along the road, a stone goes looking for the thing everyone calls happiness. Along the way it asks the Sun, the Moon, the sea, fire, an ant, a bear, a dog, and each one offers a different answer, always pointing toward someone else. The book unfolds like a chain, question after question, until it stops and turns the question directly to the reader. An invitation to look at the world with wonder and to understand that happiness changes shape depending on who names it.

Not matching others' expectations may lead to one's true value and self.

The young narrator of Genius comes from a family of exceptional minds: a mother who solves equations in seconds, a Nobel Prize-winning grandmother, an uncle training for Mars. The pressure to be brilliant is constant – and completely overwhelming. With gentle humor and genuine heart, this picture book explores what happens when a child's real talent doesn't match the one everyone expects. A story about identity, family expectations, and the discovery that every child shines in their own way – even if they do it while running as fast as the wind.

An honest emotional experience of neurodivergence.

Alonso has a mind that moves very fast, like a plane that sometimes can't find a runway to land on. He struggles to sit still, to concentrate, or to explain what he feels, but he also discovers that there are moments when his mind finds its perfect path across the sky. Through his first-person voice, the book offers readers an honest emotional experience of neurodivergence, without labels or clinical explanations. It invites us to feel accompanied, understood, and to look with curiosity at the many different ways of thinking and feeling that exist.

Being a grown up isn't exactly what we expected it to be.

There comes a strange moment in our lives when we realize that being a grown up isn't exactly what we expected it to be. When Marina was little, she thought that adults knew everything, that they were brave, patient and confident. Now that she's older, she realises that growing up also means second guessing, crying, getting angry and continuing to ask questions. This book, which can be flipped and read in both directions, invites us to bridge the not-so-great distance that spans between childhood and adulthood.

A hymn to the gentle bond uniting children and animals!

This morning, bear cubs, hedgehogs, squirrels and fox cubs wake up with a start: a very strange music resonates over there, in the clearing. Funny little animals, mounted on funny wooden animals, go round and round, laughing out loud. And what is this big wooden circle with this beautiful hat? When the big circle stops, we change animals and everything starts spinning again until nightfall. What a marvel! It's time to go examine the mysterious machine. And the big carousel starts spinning again, with teddy bears, hedgehogs, squirrels and fox cubs installed on wood animals. All night long, it spins and laughs. One evening, little Jeannot, who forgot his hat, returns to the carousel... to experience a wonderful adventure.

Nadine Brun-Cosme is the author of more than 100 novels and picture books for children and youngsters. She is the author of a best-seller which has sold 50,000 copies worldwide Big Wolf and Little Wolf.

Welcome to the village where everything small is cute... until it is not.

Here there are mushroom-shaped houses, tidy little gardens... and the Mosslings themselves –a moss-dwelling folk so adorable you just want to kiss, cuddle, and tickle them all over–. Plus, they're really kind. Well, most of the time... Sometimes, arguments break out. And when that happens, who do they call? Lumignon –the kindest of the kind– who brings everyone back together. But this morning, Lumignon is late for playtime. He's having a real struggle putting on his shoes. It's as if they've shrunk... Could he be growing taller? How can he face the fear of being different?

Autumn is coming, with its multicolored leaves swirling...

Autumn has arrived! The ground, covered with leaves, is like a large red, yellow and orange mattress. The forest animals are celebrating: Zipette does the peanut pirouette, Nanard plays hide and seek, Pétou plays the foul. But with all these leaves, Zipette can no longer find his nuts. She hopes they will come and sweep the forest soon. Sweep the forest? Her friends are surprised. Obviously, explains Zipette, otherwise there would be leaves on the ground all the time! Nobody had thought of that... But when a powerful autumn wind surprises them, our little friends must take shelter. A real race then begins to avoid flying away with the leaves...

A Round Dream

Sabina Schürmann

NEW!

Is there any fantasy more beautiful than joy itself?

This poetic and precise picture book blends literature and geometry with unique sensitivity, paying tribute to symmetry, visual play, and transformation. The figure of the king—rigid, obtuse, and closed off—discovers the start of a liberating curve in the unexpected form of a circular tear. With polished, musical prose, Sabina Schürmann charts a journey from confinement to a new doorway, from rigid decree to tenderness, inviting readers of all ages to discover that within us, too, dwells a line capable of bending melancholy.

Where the Shapes Live

Angelina Montero

NEW!

What shape does the wind take? And silence? Where does a memory live? What is the shape of a doubt?

This book invites us to view the world from a place where imagination and poetry transform the everyday. For not all shapes can be captured by the eye: the rain drawing lines in the air, a secret tucked away in a pocket, the joy that leaps in one's belly, or the stories that find a place to call home. A journey through the invisible yet deeply recognizable.

ILLUSTRATOR'S AWARDS

* Selected for Illustrators Exhibition at the Bologna Children's Book Fair in 2025

Angelina Montero spent several years at the National School of Fine Arts, where she learned to truly observe the world around her. She is captivated by the art of capturing the smallest stories—those often unnoticed yet vital threads that hold life together.

I Have Never Ever Seen a Ghost

Luciana De Luca & Francisco Cunha

A huge house and a grandfather who is as mysterious as he is endearing.

After I Have Never Seen a Witch, this book revisits the interplay between reality and imagination, with a protagonist determined to achieve a clear goal: to finally see a ghost.

During her stay at her grandfather’s house—an eccentric man surrounded by machines and gadgets—the girl explores a deserted off-season town, where noises, moving objects, and silences seem to hide something more. Blending humor and suspense, the story builds an atmosphere where everything can be explained... or perhaps not. Are they ghosts or mere coincidences? Is there something more behind what we see?

To wrap things up, the book includes a fun quiz to discover if readers have ever come face-to-face with a real ghost.

Skipping Stones Lessons

Nina Jäger & María Elina

“Time to watch and learn, Roc”

With that invitation begins a story that transforms an afternoon by the water into a ritual of learning, play, and memory. The protagonist teaches her dog the secret art of choosing and throwing the perfect stone.

As the stone skips and drifts away, the gesture becomes a legacy. In the movement of the body, the memory of the father emerges—the silent transmission of knowledge that is at once small and immense. Skipping stones is also learning that something heavy can touch the water and keep going; that something can fall without sinking.

Sometimes, making magic is nothing more than learning to look at the world with patience—and daring to throw.

Attention, please: The Three Sad Tigers come to door number five!

The three sad tigers are summoned over the loudspeaker to perform their famous tongue twister, but, tired of repeating it over and over again, they persuade the narrator to make up a different story. Will he be able to do it well?
A fun story that breaks away from the usual narrative patterns. The narrator and the characters interact constantly, creating situations that involve the reader and invite them to take part as well.

The Fly

Maestra de Pueblo & Puño

What if a simple fly could change an entire school?

At Saint Neat School, everything is perfect. Students are never late, backpacks are spotless, no one speaks without permission, and nothing unexpected ever happens—until a little fly enters through the window. What seemed like a simple visit turns into a fun-filled revolution that turns the school upside down, reminding both children and adults that learning also means playing, experimenting, laughing, making mistakes, and getting their hands dirty.

Mr. Rutineli and the Hurricane

Lirios Bou

Mr. Rutineli needed some fresh air into his highly organized life

Mr. Rutineli leads a quiet, pleasant, and—above all—highly organized life, filled with clocks, calendars, planners, and lists. But the day a hurricane-force wind sweeps away all his planners, his life goes flying off into the air (literally). So begins a day full of unexpected events, discoveries, and adventures that will teach him that, sometimes, losing control isn't such a bad thing.

Sunrise

Angela Salerno

How the morning of four children can differ so much because of they live.

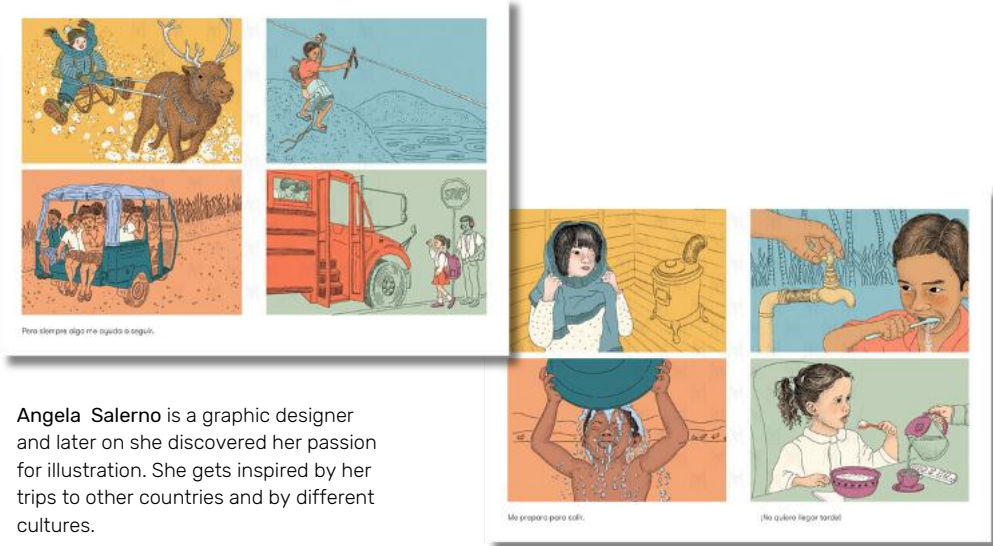

Sunrise is a picture book that follows, in parallel, the mornings of four children living in strikingly different places: one among snowy mountains, another on the African savanna, one in the tropical rainforest and another in the middle of a bustling city. Through short, warm lines of text, the book accompanies each everyday gesture: waking up, washing, dressing, setting off for school. Angela Salerno builds a choral story through repetition and visual contrast, inviting young readers to recognize themselves in experiences far from their own. An invitation to look at the world's diversity through what we all share: the start of a new day.

A charming tale about patience, gratitude, and learning to go with the flow!

A very prim and proper princess is so used to getting her way that when things don't go as planned, she feels terribly frustrated. Luckily, a wise little ladybug will help her understand what it really means to be demanding.

This book explores frustration, the importance of letting things flow, appreciating what we have, and allowing time to work its magic—all wrapped in humor and wisdom from a tiny ladybug that will make readers reflect and smile.

Sandra Alonso is a vocational teacher amazed by the magic of stories. In 2015, she created “Mis cuentos infantiles” on social media. In 2018, she became an author.

Pam López is a children’s book illustrator, comic artist, and teacher. The Capybara Series

Carla Gracia & Pau Valls

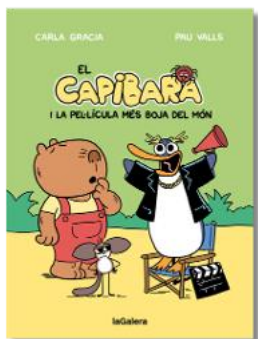

Capybara and His Friends (vol. 1)

The Capybara, the most friendly animal in the world, is the official plum pit launcher at Ship Circus: he has even reached a bucket located two meters away! When the ship where he travels sinks, Capybara ends up on an island. There he finds Aye-Aye, a nocturnal rodent. Together they will try to build a teleporting machine and, meanwhile, Capybara will spend time trying to find a new job for himself, where he will find his other skills helping others.

Capybara and the Grouchy Friend (vol. 2)

Capybara has become famous and continues to receive letters from admirers from all over the world. Aye-Aye feels lost and desperately seeks to find her calling. She wants to be famous too!

Capybara and the Craziest Movie Ever (vol. 3)

Capybara and Aye-Aye are living a peaceful life running their hug shop until, one day, Macaroni the Penguin—a film director obsessed with shooting his great masterpiece—shows up. Convinced that Aye-Aye has that special "something" that will turn her into a star, he recruits her to headline a movie packed with drama and action. But the shoot soon descends into a chaotic, hilarious mess, featuring increasingly absurd scenes. While Macaroni dreams of glory, Capybara just wants a good hug and a bit of calm.

The Incredible Worldwatchers Series

Assumpta Mercader & Josep "Kako" Carrasco & Pedro Simón

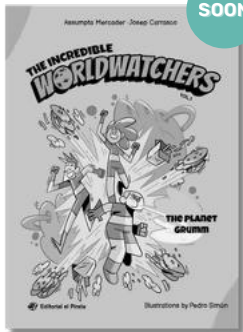

The Planet Grumm (vol. 1)

Alba, Toni, and Louis—three schoolchildren—meet the superheroine Tecla during an extracurricular activity. Tecla transforms the children into "The Incredible Worldwatchers": intergalactic guardians. Together, they travel to the world of the Grummolls, a place dominated by fast food. It will be up to them to help this world change its habits and discover the value of healthy eating.

Main topic: Healthy eating habits

Rights sold: Spanish, Catalan, English (World).

The Planet Korba (vol. 2)

An intergalactic guardian is in danger, and the Miramons must travel to the planet Korba—a world that adores rounded shapes—to save him. The guardian has committed a crime and been imprisoned: he punctured a ball, the favorite object of the planet's inhabitants. The Miramons must find a way to free their friend and help Planet Korba, which faces two major problems: on one hand, the inhabitants constantly buy new balls and discard the old ones, leading to a massive accumulation of waste; on the other, the constant inflation of balls is causing them to run out of air to breathe.

Topics: consumerism, recycling, pollution.

Universal Dance Series

Nadine Romero & Carolina Roda

Middle grade

NEW!

The Great Competition (vol. 1)

A group of five children forms a dance troupe to enter a television competition. But they all have completely different styles—something quite unusual! None of them wants to give up their own way of dancing, because it's what makes them feel authentic. After all, everyone is different, and that enriches the group—both as friends and as dancers. Throughout the story, we'll experience their adventures, thoughts, and funny moments, and above all, we'll see how they support one another. Will they manage to win the TV show? And will the fact that each has a different dance style actually help them perform better?

SOON

The Best Dance School (vol. 2)

After the adventure of the big TV competition, Universal Dance now faces the challenge of entering the city's best dance school—a place where nothing is quite what it seems or how they had imagined it. They learned during the competition that winning isn't everything, yet at this school, it seems to be the only thing that matters. Fabiana and her friends will have to overcome new obstacles to stay together, such as a frustrated teacher intent on splitting them up. Will they be forced to dance apart for the first time? It's not all bad news, though; they also have the chance to become the backup dancers for a superstar singer who is scouting for talent among the school's students!

The Prodigy Club Series

Eric Moral & Nil López

The Return of Magic (vol. 1)

When Eko, a curious teenager obsessed with the paranormal, founded The Prodigy Club with his best friends Sira and Soren, he never imagined that his fictional adventures would come to life. What begins as a small podcast of unsolved mysteries takes an unexpected turn on a summer night, when the Club crosses paths with Laia, a girl trapped in an old farmhouse that hides a portal to a magical world. With the help of a talking hedgehog, Laia leads the Club on a dangerous mission: to open the portal and unveil the secrets her family has kept for generations.

The Curse of the Werewolf (vol. 2)

The Prodigy Club receives its first mission: to enter the world of lycanthropy. They think they are prepared, but theory is not enough for everything they will experience. Werewolves, curses and dangerous decisions will test their friendship and courage. Will they be able to protect the real and magical worlds before it is too late? And you, will you be able to guide them?

The third title of a magical and interactive make-your-own-story series!

When Eko sends a list of fantastic creatures to a follower, he has no idea he is about to change the destiny of the Prodigy Club. In this new mission, the group of paranormal investigators must face Uve, a motivational influencer capable of stealing the powers of magical creatures. With your help, the protagonists will travel to places like the Amazon, South Korea, and Canada to try to stop him. Will they be able to protect both the real and magical worlds before it is too late and the villainous Uve transforms into an invincible creature? And what about you—can you guide them?

One night, while doing her daughter's hair, Luci's mother catches a star in the sky and pins it to her braid. Since then, Luci and her star become inseparable: they accompany each other in games, on rough nights, during breaks and even in dreams.

But as time goes by, the girl discovers that her lucky star has a life of its own. Can you keep a star forever? Or does true friendship also involve learning to let go?

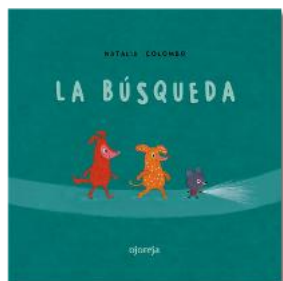

Each poem-chapter reflect how the bond between Luci and her star goes through different stages: fascination, play, jealousy, fear, loss and, finally, understanding.

A park, like so many others, is the home of four friends.

A dog disappears without a trace and his three friends decide to go looking for him, venturing to strange places. A comic book that shines in both aesthetics and plot. The narrative time is slow, in short chapters and with short texts, it introduces us to the simple world of the park. The characters' steps go at the pace of the little readers' steps and lead them through paths of mystery, adventure, humor... and lots of love, because as good friends, these dogs take care of each other and accompany each other in good times and bad.

AUTHOR'S AWARDS

- * Outstanding in Children's Comics by Alija Ibby Argentina 2017

Milo and Loberto become instant friends. And that's because they're both equally monstrous!

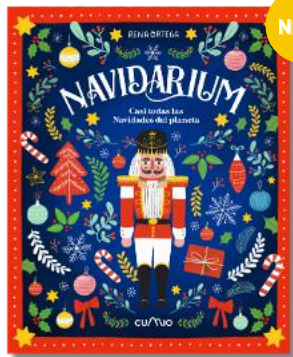

Through Milo (a small, freckled bat) and his new friend Loberto, we experience humorous adventures and everyday situations while learning about them, their environment, and their unique way of interacting. The book is structured into twenty different stories, with minimal text, making it suitable for younger (and older) readers. Each story features a maximum of six panels per page with a modern font and design that emphasizes the expressiveness of the illustrations.

Gastón Caba is an illustrator, character designer, and teacher. He has worked with clients such as Adidas, Benetton, and Sony PlayStation, with a particular focus on Asian audiences. In 2005, he launched an ambitious project called Ping Pong Remix, which brought him to prominence and invited over 70 artists from around the world to reinterpret his work. He was awarded in 2017 as Outstanding in Children's Comics by Alija Ibby Argentina.

A Young Guide to Stay Away from Hate Speech

Fear. Hate. Discrimination. Violence. The discourse of fascism has not changed, but its channels have. The emergence of social networks in our lives has allowed us to connect with the rest of the world and find other people who share our tastes, but they are also a channel that the far right uses to spread lies and fear. They can cause a fire that seems impossible to put out. So what do we do when the flames enter our homes?

Through examples, exercises and illustrations, you will put a name, face and eyes to the strategies that the far right uses to manipulate us. And, above all, you will understand the importance of critical thinking and social relationships.

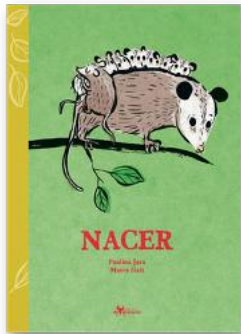

Jordi Borràs is an illustrator, photojournalist and writer. He has specialized in social issues, with a special interest in national and far-right movements that operate throughout Europe. He currently works as a freelance graphic reporter in different media. His podcast has been nominated for the Ondas Awards and has won the Best Non-Fiction Podcast Award at the III Sonor Awards (2024).

Queralt Guinart (Kerrature) is an artist and illustrator. Her artistic career moves between unique pieces and short vignettes with a strong graphic charge, but she also delves into poetry and narrative. Her forceful and versatile style puts the everyday lives of LGBTQ+ people at the center of her work, drawing the less contemplated stories of society with a tender language, without ever losing her critical and revolutionary voice.

Zero can be more than a number.

One day, a magic trick makes zero appear: a silent ghost that questions everything. From that moment on, the book turns complex ideas into everyday scenes: how many zeros are in a million, what's inside a hole or an empty sock, and whether zero frightens us or keeps us company. With humor, evocative images, and open-ended questions, it invites children to think about numbers beyond math—seeing them as part of language, of time, and even of their own identity.

The Andes are not just a place, but a confluence of different cultures.

Discover them all!

The Andes mountain range stretches from Venezuela to the southern tip of the continent. But Andino goes beyond geography: it explores a living territory where mountains, coasts, and rainforests intertwine. This book reveals that “the Andean” is not just a place, but a way of life — a confluence of cultures that share roots, changes, and continuities. Inspired by the peoples of the ancient Tawantinsuyu and their descendants, Andino invites us to understand a shared identity that continues to evolve. Because the Andean world does not belong only to the past: it is present, and it is future.

An inspiring guide to explore, learn about, and defend the green heart of South America.

Amazonia is a journey through a living territory where everything is connected: rain born from the forest, rivers carrying nutrients, and plants that feed both animals and people. Each page blends illustrations and knowledge to reveal fascinating amphibians, birds, primates, and fish, as well as foods, arts, and traditions born along the water's edge. The book portraits riverside cities and forest communities, and explains current challenges such as deforestation, fires, and climate change. It also introduces those who protect the rainforest and offers everyday actions to join in its care.

A Christmas to Remember

Patricia Casasola & Xiana Teimoy

A story that shines like a snowball: each memory, a gift.

Fox isn't feeling very Christmassy this year... until he starts going through his snowballs one by one. Each one with a fond memory. Through them he relives magical moments with his great friend Beaver: from his first gift to the last Christmas they shared. A story about friendship, the passage of time and the memories we keep in our hearts.

Throughout thirteen scenes, readers will discover how the value of friendship, generosity, cooperation and caring makes each ball shine.

Sofia Searches an Adventure

Lu Paul

Curiosity, imagination and the pleasure of looking again and again.

Curious, observant and restless, the protagonist of this book goes out in search of an adventure and the whole world becomes her stage: what is above the earth and below it, in the air, at the bottom of the sea, in space and also in past time. Each double page displays wide and detailed landscapes, populated by characters and small stories that invite you to stop. Animals, people, pirates, mermaids, ghosts and aliens coexist in scenes full of humor, surprise and emotion. The journey Sofia undertakes - from bottom to top, from front to back, from yesterday to tomorrow - invites us to wonder if the true adventure will not be, deep down, learning to look with eyes wide open at everything amazing, magical and strange that surrounds us.

A plunge into the bathtub is also a dive into an infinite terrain

For many, bath time can be very cool, but for others, sometimes the opposite is true! The shower and the bathtub are places of much resistance for the little ones... but also of much pleasure, play and imagination! The little fluffy sheep who is the protagonist of this story is hesitant. But above all, she is a brave sheep! And as is often the case with many experiences, sometimes it's just a matter of taking a leap and getting courageous. Then, with a plunge, everything becomes an adventure. Because in the bath water you can swim through the foam and giant waves, invent potions, travel back in time!

"Plunge" is a perfect book to lose the fear of water, but also to celebrate one of the most creative moments of the day.

Maia Judith is a picture book author and illustrator from Buenos Aires, Argentina.
